GUMBOOTS

for Clarinet (Bass Clarinet) and String Quartet

RED BALLOON MUSIC

Program Note

There is a paradox in music, and indeed all art, that life-enriching works have been produced, even inspired, by conditions of tragedy, brutality and oppression. A famous example is Messiaen's Quartet for the End of Time, written while he was imprisoned in a prisoner of war camp. "Gumboot dancing" bears this trait. It was born out of the brutal labour conditions in South Africa under Apartheid, in which black miners were chained together and wore gumboots (wellington boots) while they worked in the flooded gold mines because it was cheaper for the owners to supply the boots than to drain the floodwater from the mine. Slapping the boots and chains was used by the workers as a form of communication, which was otherwise banned in the mine, and this later developed into a form of dance, characterized by a huge vitality and zest for life. For me this is a striking example of how something beautiful and life-enhancing can come out of something far more negative. Of course this paradox has a far simpler explanation—the resilience of the human spirit.

My Gumboots is in two parts of roughly equal length: the first is tender and slow, at times "yearning," at times seemingly expressing a kind of tranquillity and inner peace. The second is a complete contrast, consisting of five, ever-more-lively "gumboot dances"; often joyful and always vital.

Although there are some African music influences in the music, I don't see the piece as being specifically "about" the gumboot dancers. If anything, it could be seen as an abstract celebration of the rejuvenating power of dance, moving as it does from introspection to celebration. I would like to think, however, that the emotional journey of the piece, specifically the contrast between the two parts, will force the listener to conjecture some kind of external "meaning" to the music. The tenderness of the first part should "haunt" us as we enjoy the bustle of the second. That bustle should force us to question or re-evaluate the tranquillity of the first part. But to impose a meaning beyond that would be stepping on dangerous ground. The fact is you will choose your own meaning, hear your own story, whether I want you to or not.

—DAVID BRUCE

Performance Note

It is important that Part 2 feels like an almost continuous single movement. Therefore, the gaps between the individual dances should be as short as possible (without feeling rushed!). They should not feel like the breaks between movements, the effect should rather be something more like a wedding band that has to quickly start the next number to avoid losing the attention of the crowd.

Gumboots was commissioned by the Carnegie Hall Corporation for Todd Palmer and the St. Lawrence String Quartet.

The premiere performance was given at Zankel Hall, Carnegie Hall, on 23 October 2008, Todd Palmer, clarinet, and the St. Lawrence String Quartet.
